1. Korean shipbuilders show signs of turnaround amid recovery in global demand

South Korea's shipbuilding industry shows hopeful signs of finally coming out of a lengthy stagnation from global slump with shipyards busy with new orders flowing in beyond their expectations.

Amid growing expectations for the industry recovery, Hyundai Samho Industries Co. attracted investment worth 300 billion won ($264 million) from IMM Private Equity (PE) last month. A senior official from the investment company said it made the bold investment decision as the shipbuilding industry is expected to be fully back on track around 2019 or 2020.
